A GILTWOOD MIRROR IN THE MID-EIGHTEENTH CENTURY MANNER

H: 118 in / 300 cm | W: 48 in / 122 cm

Enclosed within a carved and gilded swept and shaped symmetrical frame, adorned with 'C' scrolls, foliated and floral ornamentation, with a central divider separating the two large mirror plates, with subsidiary outer mirror plates, with an etched trellis design to the upper pediment.

Circa 1870

Provenance:

Squerryes Lodge, Westerham, Kent

The main house, Squerryes, was built in 1681 for the 1st Earl of Jersey; set in some 2500 acres of Kent countryside, the property adjoins Chartwell, home to Sir Winston Churchill.
