The 'Windsor Beauties' Room Divider

Carved from solid oak, the screen consisting of four hinged panels, with scrolled and foliate carving along the frames, and shield-shaped caned panels centred with hand-painted cartouches of Sir Peter Lely's series of 'Windsor Beauties.'

English, circa 1860

The Windsor Beauties

The Windsor Beauties are a collection of portrait paintings created by Sir Peter Lely and his workshop in the early to mid-1660s. Commissioned by Anne Hyde, Duchess of York, the paintings depict ladies of the court of King Charles II, some of whom were his mistresses. The name 'Windsor Beauties'
